

A. F. L. RADICALS START FIGHT ON GOMPERS

LOSS IN NUMBERS SAID TO BE DUE TO UNEMPLOYMENT

"BOURBONISM" NOT BOL-SHEVISM DECLARED TO BE GREATEST DANGER

OPENING SESSION

Battle Between Radical Element and the Force Supporting Gompers.

Auditorium, Denver, Colo.—Whether the American Federation of Labor shall continue the present policy of battling for trade unionism within the fold, or whether it shall face the administration of Samuel Gompers, or will change to a more radical attitude with relations closer to the Third Internationale will be decided at the annual convention that went into session this morning.

"Bourbonism Drunk"
It is not bolshevism but bourbonism that is the danger in the United States today, former Representative Edward Keating of Colorado told the American Federation of Labor, at its annual convention here today.

"Bourbonism drunk on war profits is the menace," he declared. "don't believe there are enough honest to God bolsheviks in the country to break up a plume of the maulers' union."

The speaker reviewed the various problems confronting organized labor and urged adoption of a constructive program by the convention. The convention was opened by an address of welcome by Mayor Deputy C. S. Smith, while one was extended to the delegates by Governor O. H. Shoup of Colorado who told them they had a duty to perform and that the eyes of the world were on them and expecting them to perform that duty.

James C. Bulger, president of the Colorado State Federation of Labor, gave an official welcome in behalf of labor for Colorado.

A Big Program
Unemployment, the open shop, wage reductions, relations with European labor, federations, disarmament, the Russian soviet government, and more than a score of other major issues were before the forty-first annual convention of the American Federation of Labor which opened for a two weeks session here today.

More than 500 delegates from all sections of the United States and Canada, headed by President Samuel Gompers and the executive council of the federation, marched to the municipal auditorium where the meeting opened with addresses of welcome by Governor Shoup, Mayor Deputy, Bulger, and other state and municipal officials.

Gompers Tells of Work
The first order of business was an address by Samuel Gompers reviewing the accomplishments of the federation during the past year and urging a more active opposition by organized labor to its enemies.

The executive council report setting forth the issues facing union labor with recommendations to meet the situation, was read.

President Gompers and the executive council, it was learned today, have taken steps to adjust the situation brought about by the withdrawal of the carpenter's union in the building trades department of the federation.

Carpenters Are Obdurate
While the federation administration was making plans to bring about peace in the department, the carpenters are planning to bring a resolution before the convention demanding that the union be ousted if it failed to comply with the decisions of the national board of jurisdictional awards.

President Wm. L. Hutchison of the carpenters, said his organization would not recede from its stand and was ready to fight the matter out on the convention floor.

The trade union movement in America "has successfully" defended its position and the organized effort of anti-union employers," the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor declares in its annual report submitted today to the annual convention here. It adds that "the outlook is for a continuance of not only successful defense, but steady and consistent progress."

It is true, says the report, "that the organized employers are still making strenuous efforts to destroy trade unionism and that in many directions the campaign to reduce wages continues. But these movements continue with constantly decreasing vigor and effect and that their momentum of three months ago has been completely broken."

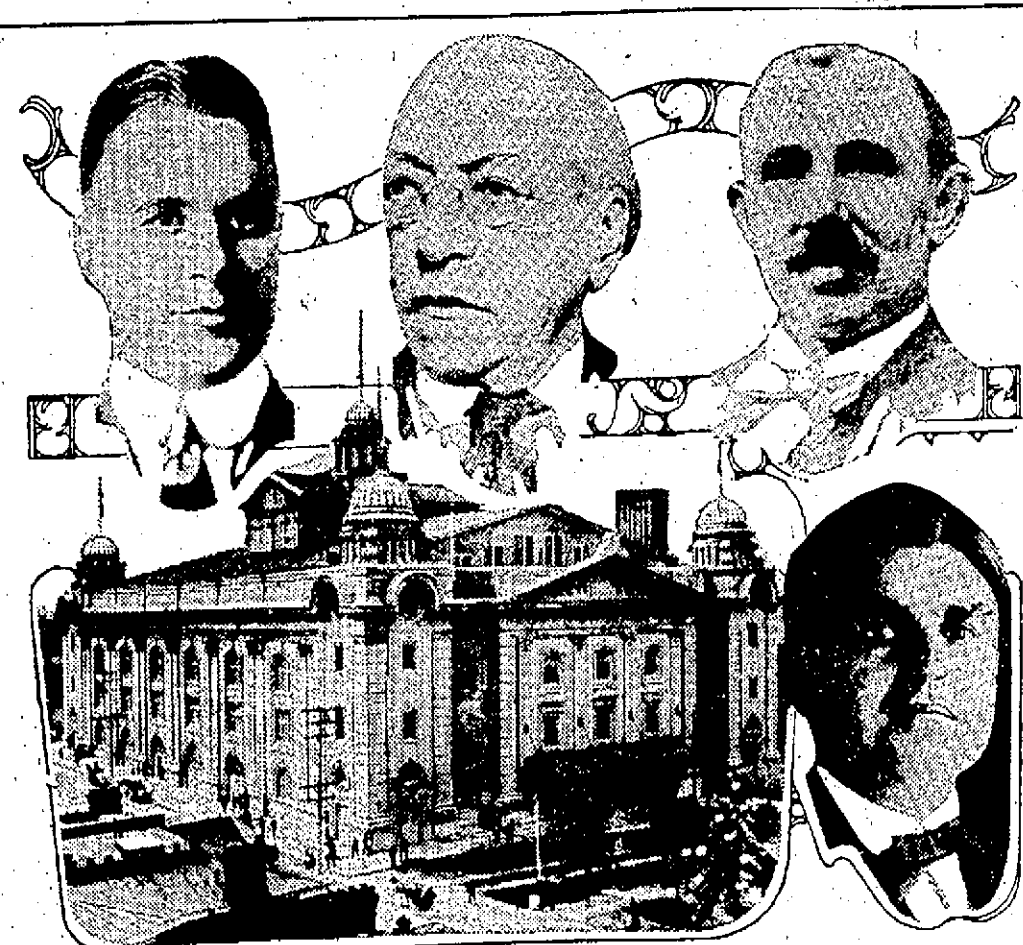

There is need for the utmost vigilance and labor can not relax in any single effort, but must, on the contrary, continue its struggle with all possible energy, intelligence and solidarity. It may, however, find satisfaction and cause for congratulation in the fact that the employers, united as never before, aggressive as never before, and financed as never before, have failed so signally and so completely in the purpose they sought to accomplish."

The Council's report covers a wide range of subjects and includes nearly a score of specific recommendations. Among them are:

That the railroad situation be investigated by a National Commission, consisting of seven representatives each of the public, the stockholders and classified labor, with a view to recommending remedial legislation to congress.

6 NEW ENGINES ON MINERAL PT. LINE

One in Service, Five To Be Added Later—As Remodeled Locomotive.

In order to provide better passenger service on the Mineral Point line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway from Milwaukee to Mineral Point, the first of six remodeled locomotives has been placed in service. The new engine will practically eliminate engine failure, which until recently was troublesome on this division.

The new engine already in use is No. 3022, alternating on the four week-day runs on Nos. 21, 6, 7 and 8. The engineer is Otto Schlicher of Milwaukee. It is an old Baldwin compound which, while one of the speediest types, proved too light for hard service and used too much water. By converting these into superheaters with the main works of the old engine, it is possible they have been made heavier and longer and consume less coal and water.

Capable of Speed.
With a 10-car train these new type G-6s can do 30 miles an hour, although with the light rails of the Mineral Point division.

One of the new engines, No. 3118, made 110 miles under favorable conditions on the main line on a test run.

The Milwaukee shops are turning out six locomotives. Eight will come here, two of which will be placed on the Northern division running to Marquette.

1,946 Engines in Service.
In 1920, the St. Paul road received 100 Mikado type locomotives from the Baldwin works at a cost of $7,102,185. Besides it converted 40 class B-2, B-3, and B-4 compounds to simple type superheaters. Fifteen electric passenger locomotives were received during the past year for the western mountain lines.

At the time the annual report of the road was made last month, the equipment of the company was 1,946 steam locomotives, 62 electric, 23,881 freight cars, 1,594 passenger coaches, 2,552 company service cars, one tug boat and eight barges.

Statement Involves Miss Mc-
Ardle, Widow of Kaber and Fortune Teller

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Cleveland.—Four women are formally charged with the murder of Mrs. Kaber who was stabbed 24 times by hired assassins in his home in Lakewood two years ago.

Mrs. Eulalia Colavito, 32, was booked on a charge of murder Monday afternoon after she made startling revelations. Others charged with the crime and who are under first degree murder indictments are Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, widow of the slain man, Mrs. Marion McArdle, his daughter, and Mrs. Mary Brickett, 69, mother of Mrs. Kaber.

Twelve persons have been named in connection with the murder of Mrs. Colavito, known as a mid-wife, was arrested several days ago. Mrs. Colavito described in an assigned statement, authorities say, how two days before the murder Kaber's assassins had slipped through his home to get the "key of the room" while McArdle played a piano to drown the noise of their footsteps. She also is alleged to have said the assassins had demanded $5,000 for committing the crime but that "Mrs. Kaber declared she would not pay it unless her husband was killed with the knife she carried on her person and who is said to have acted as a "go-between."

This was denied by Mrs. Kaber. She declared four men were employed to do the killing.

Five hundred dollars had been given to Mrs. Colavito, she said, to be paid the assassins in part. The money was given her, she alleges, by a fortune teller who is being held and who is said to have acted as a "go-between."

The fortune teller is said to have admitted handling the money but Mrs. Kaber contradicted both women's statements.

SOLVES MYSTERY

The mystery surrounding the poisoning and stabbing to death of Dan Kaber, wealthy Lakewood, (O.) publisher, has been cleared up mainly through the efforts of Edward C. Stanton, Cuyahoga county prosecutor. Stanton's work in the Kaber case is only one item in a short but busy career as prosecutor.

We last January. Since then he has caused former Municipal Judge William H. McGannon to be tried a second time for murder, has brought about the indictment of McGannon and ten others for perjury in connection with that trial, has obtained conviction of several of these persons, and has obtained the death sentence for two members of the notorious gang which killed two manufacturers to get their factory payroll. Two other members of the band have been found.

A peculiar feature of the York street outbreak was that the combatants mostly adopted the method of firing through windows and skylights, from which bullets flew in all directions. The area became a veritable No Man's Land and it was only at the gravest risk that the police, even in armored cars, dared enter the danger zone.

While passing the area in a Jerry Special Constable Smith was killed. The other three victims were civilians, having an estimated membership of about 65,000, represented at Monday's session.

U. W. Insurgents to Enforce Cap Tradition, Plan

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison.—Freshmen coming to the University of Wisconsin next fall will don the distinguishing green caps as their predecessors have done, by enforcing students carry out plans made at a protest meeting Saturday night.

Hundreds of students met and determined to appoint a committee of 25 representative upper classmen and athletes charged with enforcing the cap tradition when school opened in the fall. The meeting condemned the action of the student senate in abolishing university customs.

University officials who stood behind the senate in its action will not meddle in the trouble that is likely to develop as a result of the student revolt.

President Birge said that "if the senate chooses to recognize the revolutionists, it is up to them. The senate is trying to better things. The other faction wants to abide by the old order. I expect self-government will maintain law and order without scandal to the university, which ever way it turns out."

Speakers at the meeting said the serious trouble which resulted, cap night was caused by attempted regulation on the part of the student senate. They passed a resolution condemning the unparliamentary action of sophomores in using clubs and phosphorus bombs.

BLAINE ATTACKS HOME BREW LID IN DRY MEASURE

CALLS IT "INTOLERABLE ESPIONAGE OF THE HOME"

FOLLOWERS BOLT
Huber and Severson, Governor's Supporters, Vote
For Amendment.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison.—Governor Blaine stepped into the prohibition controversy again Monday when he attacked the Olson amendment to his enforcement bill, passed in the senate Friday, as "intolerable espionage."

Blaine said that the amendment on the home, which fritters away public money to prosecute good citizens who have no wrongful intention.

Blaine said the amendment to the Anti-Saloon league, Governor Blaine was deserted by his followers in the senate. Senator Severson, who introduced the bill, requested a vote for the change, as did Senator Huber, the other administration leader.

The stand of the governor is taken to indicate that he will vote his own bill, as he did the Matheson enforcement bill, unless the assembly accepts further amendment bringing the measure back to its original form.

"Draws to Meet Abuses."
Governor Blaine, in opposing the amendment, says "the bill was carefully drawn to meet effectively the great abuses that have grown out of the eighteenth amendment. The amendment puts the private person who possesses grape or apple juice, which by natural fermentation contains one half of one percent more of alcohol on the same basis as the outlawed distillery."

"The bill, by such amendment, makes the private home which possesses such liquor a public nuisance, which may be abated in an action by a private individual who may want to satisfy a private grudge, and subjects the home owner to severe penalties."

"It creates an intolerable espionage of the home, and fritters away public money to prosecute good citizens who have no wrongful intention. If the bill is to be passed with such an amendment it should be drafted on an entirely different theory."

Refuses to Interfere.
The bill, within the amendment, neither permits nor prohibits the manufacture or possession of homebrew or home made wines for family use in the home. It simply refuses to interfere with the citizen, or arrest him, or spy on him if he possesses homebrew or home made wine for his own use in his home and not for sale.

"The federal authorities may do this if they choose, but the state will not appropriate money to spend for this invasion of the home by its public officials."

"The bill will, as far as humanly possible, put the moonshiner out of business. Public officials will direct their attention to the real dangers and abuses of illicit liquors, and will not fritter away their time and the money of the state in petty annoyances of good citizens in the enjoyment of their family life in the sacred precinct of their own residence."

MILK MEN OBJECT TO 2-PRICE PLAN

Producers Threaten to Bolt Marketing Co. if System Is Adopted

Members of the Rock County Milk Producers' association will not agree to a two price system in the Chicago marketing company. Any attempt of the marketing company to put this system into effect will mean a fight.

Farmers are being urged to "stand tight" and await for developments. A number of farmers in Spring Valley have withdrawn from the marketing company, not having received the necessary permits for several months. Generally, the milk producers have no objection to the marketing company taking 50 percent of the May receipts to pay debts but they refuse to abide by a two price system where by producers in the immediate Chicago district, who sell for a fluid milk market, will receive more than farmers in the condensing or butter district Southern Wisconsin.

"They are not going to establish two prices and get away with it," said R. K. Overton, president of the Rock county association. "It is not possible to have one price in Clinton Junction and a lower price a few miles away in Darlen. The marketing company should know that if they turn the Southern Wisconsin producers down that they could compete with them on the Chicago market. I am not saying they would—but they could. We have too strong a county organization and I urge all farmers to stay in the county association until we can adjust this issue. If we don't like the ruling we can elect men who will change it."

The next meeting of the association will be held in Avalon on July 1. This should be even a larger meeting than was held in Orfordville when, 500 attended.

Blues Lose to Evansville, 8-1 Errors Costly

Janesville high school handed a victory to Evansville at the fair grounds here Saturday, 8 to 1. After Knipp had held the visitors to two runs—one accounted for by error—and had given only four hits, his support blew up in the eighth and six runs galloped across.

The first man up in that frame got on base on errors and advanced to second when McDermott misjudged Roberts' fly. The bugs were filled when Donegan muffed Montgomery's grounder. Then Knipp gave his only base on balls and forced a run. Three hits in succession scored a couple runs. An error by First Baseman Young let one in and the sixth was stolen from third.

Eight errors by the Blues tell the story. They could not negotiate the bases.

(By Gazette Correspondent.) Jefferson, Wis.—Errors proved costly for the Jefferson Rubbers Sunday and gave a 6 to 4 victory to Sullivan on the latter's diamond. Although the Jeffs took the lead right in the first with three runs partly made by Alkin's triple, Sullivan bunched hits and kept climbing. Johnson Creek defeated Hebron at the latter place, 5 to 4. The Batteries were: Johnson Creek—Boller and Wolf; Hebron—Sag and Walters. Eagle walked through Lake Mills for a 21 to 7 swatfest. Batteries—Eagle; Breidenbach and Lawyer; Lake Mills; Zedeman and Mills.

1913 Five Passenger $1785

1921 Seven Passenger $1785

Highest Quality at a Price Unequalled

Monday, June 13, new low Chandler prices are effective. This new Chandler price puts the Chandler car right out in front. $1785 for a five-passenger touring car was the price of the Chandler of eight years ago. The big, handsome, powerful Chandler of today, constantly developed, enlarged and refined as the the years passed, would have sold in that earlier day for twice its present price.

Our action in restoring that 1913 price for today's Chandler, is convincing evidence of the constancy of the Chandler Company's long established policy of high quality at low price. The Chandler price has never at any time been advanced because of over-sold trade.

Chandler Offers So Much More For So Much Less

Other cars of many kinds and many motors have come and gone while the Chandler Six lives and grows. There is only one Chandler Six. There

A FEW WORDS ABOUT A PARK

The soundest and most potent argument against the purchase of Riverside park, one that no one can successfully combat, is that we have never owned it before, never had a park before, and why should we need it or buy it now? It savors perhaps of the "Forty Years Ago" stuff we heard so much about once, but why pick at little things? Those who use this argument consider it complete, and tie it up with "It costs too much," and the end is at once reached. The chief of police has many complaints about boys playing ball on Sunday in vacant lots and in the neighborhood of homes. Where are they going and what are we going to do about it? Of course it might be expected that these boys should wander by the brookside on Sunday, plucking here and there a primrose or a daisy but they do not. It might be a wise thing for the city council to buy a thousand sets of the Rollo books for the boys but that would be much like feeding caramels to a long horn steer in hope that he would come to like a narrow pen. "What's all this fuss about having playgrounds?" asks one good citizen when being interviewed by the Gazette, about the park. "We didn't used to have any playgrounds."

Nope, we didn't; he's right. We played in large pastures and fields until they went and built houses in them and filled them with people who are justly opposed to having a home run made at the expense of the parlor window. The man who sits in the grand stand seat at the fair grounds and bangs his new straw hat into ribbons, when Bill Lathrop strikes out a half dozen men, kicks like a Missouri mule when the boys are scuffling over a decision by the umpire in the lot next to him.

What we want in this world is a race of strong, virile, healthy boys and girls. Maybe they could get that way by planting and caring for the garden. They do not. Maybe they could achieve this by sitting on the front porch and talking about the Einstein theory. They fall there. Clean play is the thing. Dr. Brady says that the youth should be let go and that it is a crime for the teachers to send the child home with a burden of after school work. "Get out in the air" is his command. Prof. Langley, one of the older educators of the east, used to remark that the boy with the pin in the toe of his shoe could be made to put the same energy against the least common multiple and be the leader of the class if directed right. When old men call up the newspaper and with shaky voices ask if Babe Ruth has made another home run, we cannot send the police to drive the youth off the lot because he refuses to put on the soft pedal in a ball game, and be consistent.

To grow a boy with a bulging brain and a head so full of useless facts that he can pass the Edison examination, may be a splendid accomplishment but it will amount to little if he spends most of his extra time studying the Florio Review to see what fabric his best girl is wearing and ends with a consumptive cough and tubercular bones. Education is a duty of the city and false economy in it is as great an offense as extravagance in fads. And a big part of the larger part of education, indeed -- is the making of strong, healthy men and women.

That is why we owe it to these boys and girls to provide something for them in the way of play places, even perhaps though we did not have them when Black Hawk camped here.

It would seem that Gov. Blaine's plan to establish a few thousand private stills will not be permitted.

THOUGHTS ON THE COMING FISTIC DISCUSSION

"Carp" is an unfortunate designation for the French gentleman who is about to debate a million dollar purse with our own distinguished C. Bergdoll Dempsey. Carp is a slow, coarse, lazy fish that owes its origin to ponds in Germany. Once it was the dish of the Roman aristocracy but it has come to the lowly estate of fertilizer. Shall we enter another historical parallel in our note book after July 2?

There is no telling whether Dempsey would have nervous prostration or be able to go on with the recitation if he looked up from the ropes on July 2 and saw a former draft officer standing by the ringside?

Mr. Tex Rickard announces that he would not be surprised if the gate receipts at the fight were a million dollars. President Harding has a place for Tex in the cabinet. Why not put him in Mellon's place in the treasury department? Stage a fight daily in congress and charge admission.

NEW PARTIES IN CONGRESS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—Are both of our grand old parties about to pass of the political scene? The question is justified by the formation within the present Congress of a series of little groups, or blocs, each of which represents a definite economic interest, such as that of labor, the farmers and the veterans of the World War. This is a form of organization which prevails in most European Parliaments. Under it legislation is passed by a system of quid-pro-quo among the various groups. The labor group agrees to support the farmer bloc on certain other measures, and so on.

Friends of this development in our Congress say that it means the early funeral of a party system which has long been dead. They say that our two parties have long since ceased to stand for genuinely divergent interests. Their platforms, it is claimed, have been made as non-committal as possible, in order to get the support of as many different groups as possible, and have thus almost become meaningless. Thus every platform, Democratic and Republican, professes the undying friendship of the party for the farmer, but is not highly specific as to what is going to give him. He gets about the same, no matter which party is elected. It is natural therefore, that the farmers should organize to make their needs known, and that the Senators and Representatives who are willing to support those needs should organize also. Here is the beginning of a series of parties, each of which will represent certain needs and desires of a real class of men, in place of two parties, each of which is held together only by habit, hereditary and sentimental.

In the days when "Uncle Joe" Cannon presided as Speaker, the direction of legislation rested largely in the hands of the speaker. He appointed members of all committees, and even designated who should be chairman. This system was overthrown and succeeded by the rules which at present govern the conduct of the House, and legislation, before it, in the famous "Cannon rules fight."

At this time, the legislative program is largely in the hands of a small body of men known as the "Steering Committee." No bill of any importance has much chance unless it wins approval of this committee. There the course of legislation is mapped out, and legislative tactics decided upon.

With the overwhelming Republican majority elected last fall, it was generally supposed that everything would be easy for the majority leaders in the House and Senate. Now rooks and reeds are beginning to loom ahead, placed there, not by the small Democratic minority, but by the formation of groups or blocs, made up of members of both the big parties, who are openly declaring their intentions to stand together on various questions.

A group is already in existence, numbering in its ranks members of the House and Senate alike, avowedly holding together regardless of party affiliation, representing labor in Congress. Recently was announced the formation of a farmer group or bloc, composed of 20 Senators and 100 Representatives all of whom will place the passage of what they consider needed agricultural legislation above all other political and legislative considerations. Twenty-four ex-soldier Members of the House, many of them first-term Members, have affiliated and declared war on the Regular Army whenever that institution enters the legislative lists.

There is also a Pacific Coast group, and a group pledging itself to placing reclamation projects with irrigation above party consideration and political lines of cleavage. Other groups are formed or are in process of formation.

Not only do the members of these groups pledge themselves to stand solidly together for the class of legislation they desire, but to vote together on all projects where it is decided that the interests of their group would be furthered.

The strength of these organizations of the Members of Congress, all of which will be minorities of course, lies in the hope of being able to force the Republican majority leaders to approve their legislative programs.

With the growth of the groups, and collateral to it, is the astonishing growth in the National Capital of "class lobbies." It is estimated that there are about 125 of these lobbies in Washington conducting campaigns for the adoption of the measures which the interests they represent advocate.

In addition to this pressure on Congress, which has had much to do with the formation of the blocs in Congress, there has been a reaction on the part of sincere Members of the Senate and House against the old methods of party rule. These men, because of their own convictions, are ready to throw overboard the old control of legislation by party caucus and majority leadership.

If it becomes firmly established, this group formation will be an entirely new thing in American legislative life. With rare exceptions, the membership of the Senate and House has been made up of Republicans and Democrats since the Civil War. There was the great upheaval of 1912, when the progressive party was formed, but that party and its membership soon drifted back to the Republican party. Occasionally a lone Socialist manages to get elected to the House or the representative of some new party. In a body of 435 Members, however, this is insignificant as a representation.

The swing of the pendulum back and forth between Republican and Democratic control would be checked completely by actual alignment of most of the House and Senate Members in the groups being formed. No one group could muster sufficient membership to control either body. Each in itself would be a minority. Legislation would pass when groups numbering about fifteen members to make up a majority of the House united on a measure and pushed it through.

It is predicted by legislative veterans that the vote of any measure by the President would be harder to overcome—two-thirds of the voting membership of each branch of Congress being necessary than under the present organization.

With the present overwhelming majority in Congress party lines on legislative matters are already weak and lax. It is estimated that more than three-fourths of the measures brought before Congress recently, where a measure was supposedly a strictly party measure, a sufficient number of Republicans have stood by their leaders to insure its passage.

KINDNESS AND THE CITY
He played the friend one happy morning when a stranger chanced to pass along his way. The mood was on him to be kind that day. And what he did seemed oh, so fitting then: A cheerful word—the easiest gift of men—A helping hand for which there is no pay. But all it means no words can ever say. Both these he gave and went on his way. Then he forgot the stranger and his need. Nor knew that he had helped his city's fate. He could not guess that thousands shared his deed. Yet at the mention of his city's name One man there is who rises to declare: "The finest man I've ever met lives there!"

Albert D. Lasker, of Chicago, President and owner of the Lord & Thomas advertising agency there, is the new chairman of the U. S. Shipboard. The post has gone because of his resignation. The new one has been filled by Mr. Lasker.

Like the men who have declined the job—James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, and C. Teague, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey—Lasker had been asked once before and declined.

Lasker is a combination of business man, politician and sportsman. He is part owner of the Mitchell Car Company, Quaker Oats Van Camp's and the Chicago Baseball club. He has been the baseball leagues last year, and sponsored Judge Landis as chief arbiter.

For the last three years he has stood behind Will Hays, and was a staunch supporter of Hiram Johnson for the presidency. After a convention he was a member of the Republican advertising and publicity campaigns.

FORTY YEARS AGO
June 12, 1881.—There are fewer prisoners in the county jail now than for many years, the number being four. One of them is a tramp and two are drunkards, while the other is being held on more serious charges. The hardware store of W. S. George and company was entered last night and about $20 worth of goods taken.

THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO
June 12, 1890.—R. B. Bleasdale has opened a feed store on W. Milwaukee street. The Milwaukee Live Stock Association is holding a convention in Milwaukee. AUTOTHOGRAPHY—PSYCHOLOGICAL MISTAKES
Discipline is a good thing for a boy. Sometimes punishment tempered with reason is a good thing for him. But it is to those parents who decide children in the attempt to command obedience.

One of the harmful statements, particularly to children, is "Johnnie, if you don't stop that I'll whip you" or "If you don't stop that you again." Johnnie soon discovers that no whipping follows, even though he fails to stop, and Mary cannot help wondering why mother keeps doing an act which about it is in spite of her promise. Youngsters have a way of thinking over such affairs for themselves and it is natural for them to conclude that if father and mother can make statements so easily about small matters and then not carry them out, why, one must take their assertions about important matters with a grain of salt.

Another mistake which some parents make is to tell the child that he is a good boy or a bad boy, or the good fairy and bad fairy myth, or any other myth involving the notion of reward or punishment from some wholly imaginary source. Every one of these familiar deceptions tends to alienate the child's true affection and respect for the parent who deceives them.

The worst of all the statements made by parents to their own children is that one about the stock for that story is told, not for the child's best interest of welfare, not because it can do anybody any good, but purely for the purpose of his own self. It is a warped duty. It is a statement that has far-reaching disastrous effects upon psychology of the child, for of father and mother can a child put confidence in the revelations of the yarn which mother or father may feel impelled to make later on. I think it is a good idea to give your own children a fair start and never fear to tell them the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Think it over, potential parents, and resolve right now that if God does bless you with children you will not play them false. It is said indeed to feel that the child should be a model of deception erected between mother and daughter or between father and son.

I tell you it is a glorious feeling for a fellow to know that his dad has never wilfully or intentionally deceived him in the smallest circumstance. It must be a wonderful happiness.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

A Lost Washer.
My three-year-old girl swallowed a nickel two weeks ago. She has been worried about it. She says her stomach hurts. Is it too large to pass out of the stomach? How can we determine whether it is? (Mrs. B. D. C.)

ANSWER.—It has no doubt passed from the bowels in the stool. Foreign bodies swallowed are usually passed in forty-eight hours or less. Perhaps the child's imagination is influenced by your anxiety. X-ray pictures would demonstrate the presence of a metal object.

An Eye Tooth.
The other day in biting on some hard candy I broke off a piece of an eye tooth that had been filled. An swallowed the piece. Is there any danger in this? (W. D.)

ANSWER.—It is no danger if involved in swallowing such articles accidentally. It is better to avoid candies and eat such food as potatoes, squash, turnips, bananas, to produce bulky feces which will cover the foreign body so that it may be ejected from the bowels without difficulty.

Is Cancer Curable?
I quote the following from a poem: "Every person would go to a reputable physician as soon as there is any evidence of cancer in his system. The cancer would be 100 per cent curable," declared Dr. in speaking on cancer.

Dr.—I stated that cancer is not inherited, infectious, contagious, and that it is painful only when the victim is near the end. Can you subscribe to that? (G. D. R.)

ANSWER.—Many victims succumb to cancer who might have been saved had they consulted reputable physicians in the first place. Instead of fighting with death in the guise of an alleged "cancer cure" or a quick operation to "take it out by the roots," of course, surgery and surgery without dangerous precaution, is the one chance for the cancer victim. Cancer is not heritable or communicable, so far as is known, and in some cases pain is not a feature of the early stage, or indeed pain may be absent throughout the course of cancer in certain situations.

Q. What do the initials H. G. stand for in H. G. Wells' name? G. G.

A. This agreement was effected in October, 1918.

Q. How did the expression "Indian giver" originate? J. E. H.

A. The expression "Indian giver" is used in reference to a person who takes back a gift after it has been given. The allusion is to the fact that an Indian expects an equivalent for his gift or its return.

Q. How can objectionable flavors be removed from butter? E. J.

A. Objectionable flavors that develop in butter are partially removed by placing the butter in a large vessel, melting it slowly, then adding to it about twice its volume in hot water. This melted butter and water should be thoroughly mixed in order to give the water an opportunity to absorb the objectionable flavors from the butter. After allowing the butter to stand for a few minutes the fat can be poured off. This should be repeated, after which the fat may be allowed to harden. The resulting product is butter fat and not butter. The flavor has been improved, but the butter will be found to be very short and brittle, and that it can be spread with difficulty. It is, however, suitable for cooking purposes.

RUST APPEARS ON WHEAT AND BARLEY

Madison.—Rust has appeared on wheat and barley in the state, a report of the crop service says. Fields are said to be spotted in many places. Farm crops progressed at an average rate during the week, according to the report, although in a dozen counties very little retarded growth. In other places continued rain made cultivating of corn impossible. Potato beetles are causing average damage, while grub worms and cutworms are "spotting" some fields of corn. The report brings out. Winter grains, it says, have made some advance with winter wheat already beginning to head, and rye well headed in some fields.

Late potato planting is said to be progressing rapidly in central and northern counties. Alfalfa, with a good first crop is being harvested in southern counties. Millet and soy beans are being planted to replace killed-out clover. Tobacco is reported as being transplanted under excellent conditions.

KEEPING AN EYE ON FOREIGN LOANS

Harding Administration Looking to Flow of Money to Europe.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.
Washington—President Harding feels that the administration has passed the first milestone in the journey of understanding and good feeling to be traveled by the government and private business.

The president announced that the government here had received satisfactory assurances from international bankers to the effect that the latter would co-operate with the government in the matter of financing enterprises for foreign peoples.

This is really a new departure for the government, inasmuch as, though European governments have always worked in close and intimate relationship with private industry and business, from April, 1917, the United States government has been lending money to foreign governments and peoples. Prior to that time, when America was neutral, the big banking institutions of this country, the State Department, and the Treasury, were not in the least interested in the slightest, giving neither encouragement nor support to the loans.

Now, however, the Harding administration has decided to become an active participant in the situation for entirely different reasons. The political aspect of foreign loans has become a question of world economics and particularly a matter of domestic protection against the unimpeded flow of American money into foreign countries at attractive rates of interest.

Mr. Harding and the cabinet have no legal power to interfere with the flow of money into foreign countries. But the exercise of moral influence by the government can be made an important factor. If the administration were to issue a public statement advising the people that a certain loan was not to the best interests of our domestic business situation, the banking houses endeavoring to float such a loan would run up against an indifference of people and the loan would be doomed.

Bankers to Co-operate
So it is just as much to the interest of the bankers as the government that there should be co-operation. No loans therefore will be floated of which the government disapproves. It was made quite clear at the White House that this doesn't mean the bankers are to be given a guarantee of private loans. Nor does it mean that the government regards every proposition offered by the international bankers as a matter of course.

The public will have to judge for itself the merits of each loan. But it does mean that every loan issued will have had in advance the tacit approval of the government, and that the Harding administration will have been given the opportunity to express an objection and thus kill the loan if it deems the project against the interests of the country as a whole.

Keep Track of Loans
In this way the government will keep track of all loans or enterprises which may be co-operated with funds out of the United States. The Harding administration feels that foreign governments, borrowing money here ought to agree that the sums received shall be used indirectly to pay off private American export trade.

Photographic Printing Near, Is Assertion
London.—Suggestion that printing from type is likely to be superseded was made by William Gamble at the recent World Congress of Printers here. He predicted that the new printing by photographic process would occupy hardly more space than a typewriter, or be any more complicated.

BANKERS PLAN TO AID GROWERS OF LIVESTOCK

That very evening Ruth had a telegram from Gabrielle Carter, announcing that she was coming to Markington and would be there in the morning and come to Ruth's office. A casual correspondence had been carried on between these two, but Ruth had had no letter for weeks.

And next morning about 10 o'clock the office door opened and in came Gabrielle with two suitcases, to catch hold of the little actress' enthusiasm. "Darling, I'm so glad to see you, and how well you're looking," she said, and released Ruth to look at her and find out whether this just statement was true or not.

I'll go from here to Pittsburgh."

"If you know how glad I am to see you," Ruth began. "Darling, you're just my eyes. But you do look like it." A client strolled into the office, and Ruth had to wait until she sent Gabrielle home.
